On a Macintosh using CVE-2015-5361, it works the same as the previous case. But on a Macintosh using CVE-2015-7501, it doesn't work. I can't find any other information about the problem. Is there any explanation for this? I have not been able to find any solutions. I am using Visual Studio Express 2013 for Windows Phone development. I am creating my own application. In my project folder, I have a "Resources" folder. There is a res file in this folder. This res file contains images and files. I can't figure out why the images aren't showing up. I also can't figure out how to fix this problem. I have also tried adding res as a resource to another application and it works fine. It may be because I have not been able to load the files into the resources folder. This is a problem because I have files that I need to upload, but I can't put them in the shared folder. I only have files that I can add to the resources folder I don't think you can find these files in the resources folder because usually the files are in the application (such as a project). To find the files, you need to use the properties file (extract it from the project folder) and specify the path in the appropriate properties file. I use Project-> Properties to change the default property path (e.g. C:\MyApp\Resources) and specify the path in the property files. I also put the resource files in the application folder so that they are available as needed. I use Project-> Properties-> Resource (and I create a shortcut to access the file). I use Project-> Properties-> File and then select the file in the project folder. There are several resource files in the project folder that I want to change. All of these files are in the same file. I have tried to change all of these files together, however, I find that all of the resource files have the same version. How can I do this? Please suggest. Thanks Use Project Explorer - File-> Change-> Revert All Files... This will give you a selection of the files you want to change. Select the files and choose "Revert Contents". If you are only interested in the list of files, go to Project Explorer - File-> Change-> Revert All Files... (Change/Return All Files). Select the file you want to revert. In Project Explorer, select the file and choose Revert. Click Ok. In Project Explorer, select the file you want to abandon. In Project Explorer, select the file and select Revert. In Project Explorer, select the file you want to Revert. Click "Ok. Click "Ok." Select All. Select "All." Press "Ok". Click "Ok". Click "Ok". Press Ok. Select Add. Touch Add. Select the Add option.
