You and your robotic crewmates were sent to this planet for one purpose - to prepare a working habitat for the future waves of human colonists eager to escape the dying earth. Gaiya's untold natural resources are a juicy target for interstellar big business. Healthy competition among competing corporations drive the dangerous expeditions. Will you succeed in establishing a profitable foothold on this mysterious world, or will the perils of Gaiya and the ruthless corporations out to exploit her natural resources be too much for you to handle? Command. Colonize. Survive. Fight against a variety of native alien creatures, and defend your base against roving bands of pirates and enemy raiders. Attack rival players' strongholds to destroy their operations and loot their resources. Craft upgraded weapons and armor, and lead AI squadmates into battle against your enemies. With skill and cunning, this hostile planet can be transformed into a thriving colony with a fully functioning society of AI robots. What's new in LCD Sports: American Football:

v3.0 When we started this project, we wanted a fun adult interactive fantasy roleplaying game for women while staying true to the mythology of the Final Fantasy series. We're huge fan of tabletop roleplaying games, and we wanted to create a game that was simple to learn, fun to play, and culturally immersive. As the project has progressed, we've learned a lot from other RPGs. We've added rules such as crazy-jump elements, survival-based skills, and action skills. We've added character sheets, visuals, and lore, so the girls can literally have adventures where they get to take their weapons into battle, and even fight monsters and princes themselves. We've also researched how we can keep this game as similar as possible to an RPG, while at the same time staying true to the Final Fantasy franchise. We believe we've covered each part just right. There is still so much more to do, and we're getting really excited to be able to show this game off at E3. 19 Comments It's awesome to see a game of this caliber being produced so successfully. I feel more than confident that the game will be a wonderful experience for the people who play it. It looks like you've accomplished everything you set out to do, and I really appreciate the time and effort you put into it. The first part of the video was also really cool, it gave me chills when I watched it. It's really really interesting seeing such a well developed female side of gaming, i can really see this being a fun game for everyone to play, and very interesting to see how it will pass on to the next generations of gamers. It's really cool to see more women involved in gaming like this. I love all of the different cultures that're represented in it. I think it's important that women are able to play games, interact with others, and be creative. You guys are doing a really neat thing! Despite the amount of effort put into this project, the way the proposed rules work still slightly clash. This is something that would be still bothersome, yes, but it is also something that would push in for a better experience. This because on certain chapters you can define your character classes. This is something needed by players, since in the end, players can have classes similar for most situations. It is true that
