Dragon Marked For Death is a side-scrolling 2D action RPG that can be played solo or with up to four players in online multiplayer. You play as the survivors of the Dragonblood Clan who set out to take revenge on the Kingdom of Medius, who destroyed their home and captured the Dragonblood Oracle, Amica. To obtain the power they need to enact their revenge, they forge a pact with the Astral Dragon Atruum. Use your newly acquired powers to take on quests from villagers and raise your status in the kingdom. How you perform in these quests can have a direct effect on the game's final outcome. Quests aren't all about defeating enemies, though. You'll guard a ship's passengers from monsters, search for hidden treasure, rescue a princess from a castle under siege, and a lot more! Choose from four playable characters from the start (Empress, Warrior, Shinobi, Witch) and two characters that are unlocked once certain in-game conditions are met (Oracle, Bandit) to defeat your enemies, gain experience, and level up. You'll receive points as you level up that can increase your attack power, defense, agility, and other parameters. Customize your character in a way that best suits your individual playstyle! Team up with up to four players from all over the world in online co-op multiplayer action. By strategizing and working together with your party, you'll be able to achieve even greater results and reap even better rewards! Get ready to experience the unique, dark fantasy world of the Dragonblood Clan in this intense 2D action-RPG! About Dragon Marked for Death: Take on quests from villagers in this side-scrolling action RPG, where how you perform in these quests can have a direct effect on the game's final outcome. and sleep if Travis and Gil aren't content to move their gurney into the rec room. Nada doesn't ask the others to do anything of the sort, either, even though it is the job of the two caravaners to stake out the perimeter of the district and the streets around it. I can't see why she's so willing to let this knothead act around her friends when she won't put a competent foot on the ground. Vin comes back into the kitchen just as we sit down to supper. "No vans. Shippers are running an hour behind on claims, and I heard that one from a guy in the yard about ten minutes ago." Nada bites the inside of her lip and looks away. The closer we get to the deadline, the worse things are going to be for us if we don't get the deal in soon. But it's bad enough, always. "A long shot, but they'll be working it any case," Gil says. Nada's chair squeaks as she slides it back and starts stretching. She tugs at the buttons on her collar as she moves. A grimace marks her mouth when she realizes what she is doing and drops her hands. "We just gotta take advantage of the window of opportunity we're trying to work. The claims are gonna run out, and if you wait 'till then-" "If," Nada drops her chin into her hands. "Oh, my damn." "What?" Vin is looming in the doorway. He has come off work and a hot, stiff drink. He drops to a dry, warm spot on the tiled floor and drains the golden nectar from the rock of his hand. "Sometimes nothin' gets done around here," Nada says. "I swear." "Here they come," Gil says. He puts on his blue glasses and peers out the window
