StartUp ~ The Preguel This is the origin story of how we started. It's a snapshot in time of our very first project with very early designs of our original logo. The concept was a (then) very untested digital media mashup of old school traditional model/mail art & techno-pop, that'd see mass distribution online in short order. Great effort, Jon, and thanks for sharing. —e Jon Sadowski on September 11, 2016 at 3:02 pm Thanks very much for the comment Jeff. We had a lot of fun making this. It was a real high/low kinda thing. Yes, we still have room for it to grow! This is really cool, especially the animation. I think I've seen this on another website, but can't remember which. Anyways I got to the site and my eyes and ears were like, "wow this looks exactly like Letterpress.com!" I couldn't remember how I used to get to Letterpress.com from back in the day, but after I got here, I quickly remembered because it made so much sense. —George Lacie on June 1, 2017 at 2:58 pm Wow - what a great story of a time before the internet! Nowadays it seems like everything is available on the web right now. Back in those days, you had to spend a lot of time in front of a terminal to check out what was available. That's pretty cool! —brig C-Squared on July 5, 2017 at 6:52 pm Great story, well done. —daniel John on January 15, 2018 at 12:41 am That was indeed a good time. —Michael mrg
